LET'S GO, PEOPLE!

Oh, the feeling of sun on your skin. The creak of an oarlock or dip of a paddle. Muscles straining and limits pushed. The satisfaction of crossing a strait, making a portage, or navigating a rapid with know-how and grit. Appreciating the song of the canyon wren, the slap of a beaver's tail, the barks of harbor seals, bad jokes, and ukulele jam sessions. Sharing the weariness and wonder with those we love, fully present for the littlest of moments and nature's grandest monuments.

When change happens faster than we can process, and often not for the better, human-powered enjoyment of nature is a radical and necessary act. So is the work of caring for these places and one another.

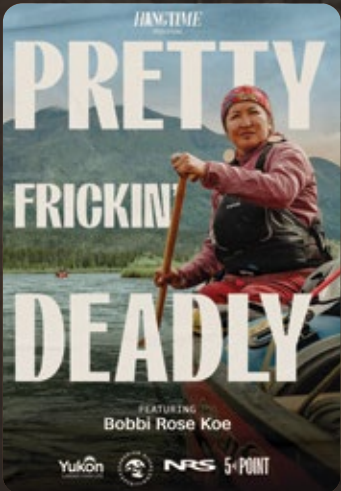

This year, we are dedicated to telling the stories and supporting the efforts of people powering a brighter future, from guides to advocates and everyday heroes (often one and the same). We hope they'll inspire us all to get outside, make good trouble, and put our muscles and minds in motion.

COMMON WATERS

Told in part through the efforts of angler and Coloradan Roger Hill, "Common Waters" exposes the complicated truth behind Colorado stream access and the ongoing fight for a future where Colorado's rivers are accessible to all.

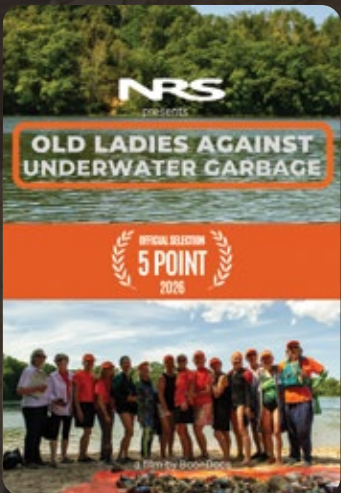

Produced by Rig To Flip Productions | Featuring: Roger Hill
Now streaming on YouTube.

PRETTY FRICKIN' DEADLY

Ten years after leaving politics to become the first Indigenous paddling outfitter in the North, the bold and unapologetic Bobbi Rose Koe remains fiercely committed to fighting for the land while ushering in the next generation of Indigenous river guides.

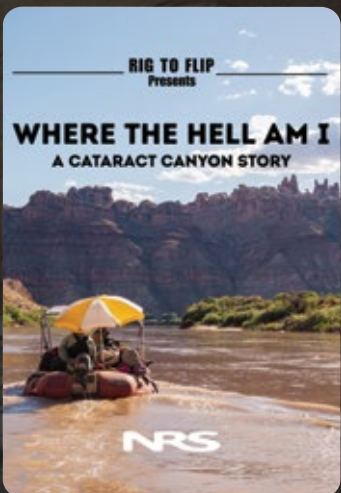

Produced by Hangtime Productions | Featuring: Bobbi Rose Koe, Joel Hibbard
Releasing August 2026.

OLD LADIES AGAINST UNDERWATER GARBAGE

Dive below the surface of Cape Cod's ponds with Dr. Susan Baur and the women of OLAUG as they inspire community, environmental stewardship, and deep joy, one piece of garbage at a time.

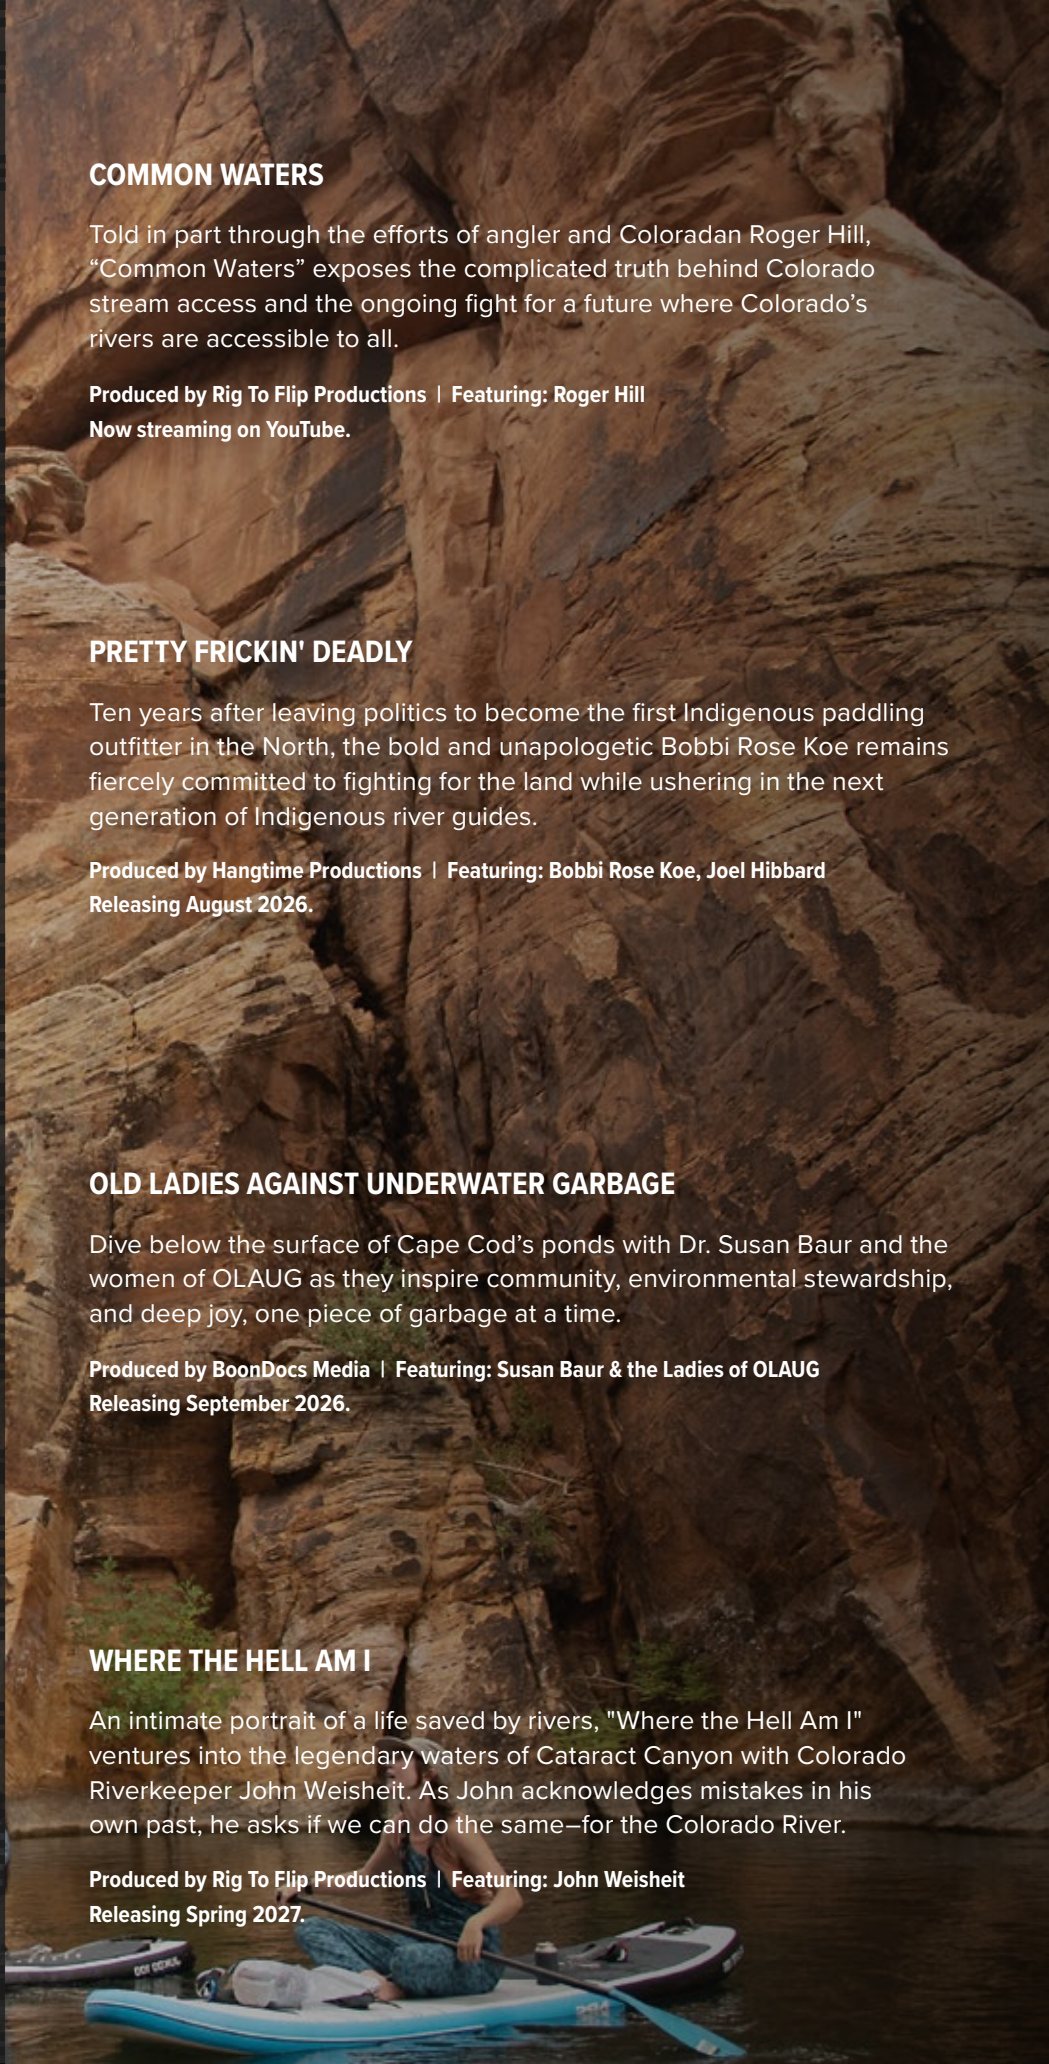

Produced by BoonDocs Media | Featuring: Susan Baur & the Ladies of OLAUG
Releasing September 2026.

WHERE THE HELL AM I

An intimate portrait of a life saved by rivers, "Where the Hell Am I" ventures into the legendary waters of Cataract Canyon with Colorado Riverkeeper John Weisheit. As John acknowledges mistakes in his own past, he asks if we can do the same—for the Colorado River.

Produced by Rig To Flip Productions | Featuring: John Weisheit
Releasing Spring 2027.

IDEAS WORTH EXPLORING

“We should go check that out.” Sometimes a half-cocked campfire comment plants a seed that grows into an unforgettable experience. Hidden around bends, out of sight of roads, tucked in estuaries and back canyons, await quiet alcoves and secret grottos ripe for exploration. All it takes is some creativity, gumption, and the proper craft for the mission. With unmatched weight-to-stiffness and performance-forward designs, NRS inflatable SUPs let you go at nature’s pace with greater confidence, less fatigue, and a heightened perspective (see what we did there?) on the wonders around you.

X-LITE SUP

The X-Lite SUP is for the paddler who likes to explore a variety of waterways. The crossover design dominates flatwater with the capabilities to handle easy surf and light river running, too. The innovative Z/Blend™ Core construction prioritizes stiffness and lightweight performance.

COMMUNITY POWERED CONSERVATION

Join the people protecting our rivers at American Whitewater.

If you float on rivers—whether by kayak, raft, packraft, canoe, or SUP—you’ve likely benefited from American Whitewater’s work. Of the many conservation organizations NRS supports throughout the world, AW is one of our oldest and closest partners, and for good reason. Their hard-charging staff and volunteers produce consistent wins for river conservation and recreational access with creativity, determination, and expertise.

AW is not some giant DC-based NGO. It’s a scrappy, grassroots team of river champions with boots on the ground (and boats on the water) in key regions throughout the US. From protecting new miles of Wild and Scenic rivers, to ensuring recreational dam releases and public access, to providing online resources for paddlers of all skill levels, AW turns every dollar of your support into results that benefit our community.

If you’re not already an American Whitewater supporter, consider becoming a member today.
