FISHING 2016

HORSESHOES AND HAND GRENADES

We shrug off work, we stay up late packing, we blow our money on gear and gas. We get our hopes up impossibly high and inevitably fail to meet them. We go home exhausted. We go back to work. We say we'll clean up the gear pile tonight, and we'll say the same tomorrow.

Still, we can't get enough. Every day on the water is an education, and yet we never learn our lesson. Because that's the point of fishing. Every trip, every cast, is a thumbing-of-the-nose at practicality. If we learned our lesson, we'd stay home and mow the lawn, and where's the fun in that?

At the root of it all is the belief that we can improve our chances with better tools, better technique and better preparation. To fish is to be a perfectionist, and for an angler who fusses over the hackle on a size 18 Adams, or who sharpens trebles on crankbaits while watching the playoffs, every detail matters.

For over four decades, anglers have adapted NRS products to improve their chances and experiences on the water. Today, we purpose-build gear specific to their needs—from boats to apparel, life jackets to accessories. We count ourselves among the obsessed, so we know this isn't horseshoes or hand grenades. This is fishing, and close just doesn't cut it.

CRUSH

When we were kids, a simple pair of sneakers took us everywhere we wanted to go, from the playground to the pond and back to the house in time for supper. With the Crush, we've built that same idea into a technical shoe that's equally capable in the boat, on the bank and at the barbecue. We made the upper breathable, quick drying and tough enough to last a nonstop season. We gave it a crushable heel and tuned the interior for barefoot comfort. Then we chose the stickiest rubber we could find and stamped our Idaho soul onto the sole, because playing in our backyard makes us feel like kids again. [Imported]

ROCKING THE BOAT

While we love rafts for fishing steep and rocky rivers, we also love the way traditional drifters track, ferry and anchor on gentler waters. And that made us think: why not combine the best characteristics of both? In 2012, the inflatable, self-bailing Clearwater Drifter debuted to rave reviews from our network of professional guides. A year later, we released the smaller and sleeker Freestone Drifter, and we haven't stopped refining both designs ever since. These boats row and fish like a drift boat and bail and bounce off rocks like a raft, with the added benefits of a raft's quiet acoustics. They feature casting platforms, thigh hooks and anchor systems, plus swiveling seats for two anglers.

FREESTONE Drifter

At 14'3" long, with a narrower beam and lower gunwales, the Freestone excels on smaller, technical streams and any place where wind is a worry.

84062.01 | $5,495.00 | 14'L x 70"W x 21"H; 260 lbs.

CLEARWATER Drifter

The 17' Clearwater features a deeper hull and broader beam for fishing faster moving waters and running rapids up to Class III.

84060.01 | $5,995.00 | 17'L x 82"W x 26"H; 330 lbs.
