2017 COLLECTION

A Legacy Lives On

Longtime NRS customer Mike Beiser has spent a lifetime outside, and much of it sharing the outdoors with others. From a stint with the National Parks Service in the late 1970s, to his 32 years as the University of Idaho's Outdoor Program Director, he has taught countless people how to roll, how to row, and how to pack for a trip down the river. He was also one of the earliest product testers for NRS and attended product development meetings with our founder, Bill Parks. Bill would provide the pizza and beer, and guys like Mike would deliver the beta.

Like a lot of early boaters, Mike's first dry bag was a military surplus delousing bag. These were the first dry bags we carried at NRS. But as the delousing bag supply began to decline, Bill knew he would have to source his dry bags elsewhere. Since an alternative source did not exist, he decided to build them himself. He purchased some heavy-duty truck tarp material at a discount, found a shop in Seattle that could weld it, and the original NRS Bill's Bag—the first purpose-built dry bag for boaters—was born.

NRS product development has grown more sophisticated since those early days, and yet some things never change. We still buy pizza and beer for boaters and gear heads to get their input on how to make things better, and we're still building our legendary Bill's Bags. We've updated all of our dry bags for 2017, and the Bill's Bag has never looked, or functioned, better.

Mike is retired now, but like the battered Bill's Bag he has carried on trips all over the world, he is still going strong, and still looking forward to the next adventure.

PADDLING SUITS

In January, the U.S. Whitewater Rafting Team attempted to row the entire Grand Canyon in under 34 hours, hoping to break the speed descent record. We developed our paddling suits with guys like this in mind, delivering maximum comfort on extended tours, with smart details that keep you feeling good and performing at your best no matter how long you stay on the water. Which is why, with limitless gear options at their disposal, these eight paddlers chose to wear the NRS Navigator paddling suit. Its neoprene neck gasket is less constricting than latex, and battle-tested 4-Layer Eclipse™ fabric ensures dry performance. In the words of the U.S. Whitewater Rafting team, “We hammered our Navigator suits. We rowed, cooked, scrambled on rocks, patched tubes, swam, wrenched on the frame, drove shuttle, rigged, de-rigged, and slept in our suits. They’re pretty stained and dirty now, but there are absolutely no signs of wear and tear.”

CRUSH

We wanted a shoe we could wear day in, day out, on and off the water. A shoe that the off-duty guide/safety boater/instructor/bartender sleeping on our couch would covet. It had to feel as good as it looked and perform as well as it felt—in the boat, on the SUP board, around camp or at the pub. We made the upper breathable, quick drying and tough enough to last a nonstop season. We gave it a crushable heel and tuned the interior for barefoot comfort. Then we chose the stickiest rubber we could find, siped it for even better wet traction, and stamped our Idaho soul onto the sole. [Imported]

YAK YAK BOAT CARTS

Over the years, we've seen a lot of different boat carts, tested a lot of boat carts, sold a lot of boat carts. But we've never found a model that met all our criteria for what a good boat cart should be: lightweight, compact, easy to use and maintain, reasonably priced, and effective on a variety of surfaces. So we decided to build our own. We made it lightweight and rust resistant, and it folds compactly for easy stowing. A tried-and-true NRS loop strap secures your boat, not some funky ratchet or belt. The removable wheels are airless—no odd-size tubes to replace—with a wide footprint and smooth-rolling rubber tread. Two sizes fit nearly any canoe or kayak.

“I hope that all Americans will join me and others who love the outdoors in protecting this for our children and grandchildren.”

– President Jimmy Carter

What legacy will we leave for future generations of Americans? Will we leave behind clean water, healthy streams and access for recreation? Or will they inherit the consequences of exploitation and neglect?

Our public lands and waters are essential to the American life we know and love. These are the places where we paddle, fish, swim and picnic. Where we hike, hunt, climb and ski. Where we go to escape the stresses of everyday life, to reconnect with nature and our heritage, to recharge our souls. For over 100 years they have been protected by some of our most prominent leaders—both Republican and Democrat—and cared for by dedicated citizens, for the enjoyment of all.

Today, powerful political and industrial forces are attempting to undermine public ownership and stewardship of these important places. Which is why we’re working to remind Americans of their value to our nation and their meaning in our lives.

Together with American Rivers and American Whitewater, we’re collecting the stories of 5,000 individuals in an effort to protect 5,000 new miles of Wild and Scenic Rivers. We’ve joined a growing list of leading outdoor industry companies in fighting to keep our lands and waters public. And through films and feature stories, we hope to inspire a new generation of Americans to experience our wild places and help preserve them for generations to come.

The latest project from NRS Films chronicles Jimmy Carter and Claude Terry’s first descent of Bull Sluice rapid in a tandem canoe. Set on the Wild and Scenic Chatooga River, The Wild President premieres online April 25.

NRS STRAPS

During the high-water year of 1974, a wave of Idaho rafting accidents gave NRS Founder Bill Parks an idea. Rather than tie equipment down with rope or webbing, which made the gear difficult to detach after a flip, why not adapt cam straps from the freight industry? Bill sourced the best buckle on the market, along with the strongest, most UV-resistant webbing. When he brought the two together, the NRS strap was born, and the boating world has never looked back.
