2018 COLLECTION

TURBULENCE

We fear it and we court it. It shakes us and awakes us. Navigating it teaches us hard-won lessons in mastering our emotions, performing under pressure and overcoming adversity. When the pucker meter climbs into the red, we have no choice but to rise to the occasion, on the water as in life. Our 2018 collection is inspired by all of you dropping in, digging deep and living up to the challenge—whether running rapids, throwing tricks, exploring the unknown or standing up for our wild places.

Photographer, conservationist and river guide Amy Martin embraces turbulence on a high-water run of the Salt River, Arizona. Erik Boomer

PIVOT DRYSUIT

Pivot Drysuits keep the business in the back and the party up front where it belongs. The rear-entry design eliminates pressure points on the front of the suit, improves flexibility and reduces stress on the zipper. We've positioned the TIZIP® MasterSeal closure so it's easy to put on and zip up on your own. We've also added a front relief zipper in the men's suit and a zippered drop-seat in the women's to make those riverside pit stops less awkward. [Imported]

GOING BIG FOR RIVERS

I'm 9 years old, ankle deep in the suburban creek behind our house with my brother and our neighborhood friends, moving rocks to make waterfalls on an August afternoon.

I'm 25, sitting on a raft deep into a trip down Alaska's Copper River, and I've never seen a river so wide or mountains so high.

I'm 41, drifting down Oregon's Wild and Scenic John Day River with my husband and two little boys, singing silly made-up songs, and grateful that my phone is turned off and stashed at the bottom of a dry bag somewhere.

Throughout my life, water has been a constant and rivers have always given me what I need—sometimes confidence, usually humility, often awe. Always connection.

We need rivers and rivers need us. Especially now.

This year, 2018, marks the 50th anniversary of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act. There are more than 12,000 miles of Wild and Scenic Rivers nationwide. You know some of these rivers—the Salmon, the Delaware, the Tuolumne, the Chattooga—just to name a few. But too many more rivers across our country remain unprotected, vulnerable to threats including new dams, pollution and other harmful development.

This is a chance for all of us who value wild, free-flowing waters to share our stories and speak up to safeguard our last wild rivers. At American Rivers, we're proud to be working to protect more of the rivers that give us—and our friends, families and communities—so much. To celebrate the 50th anniversary, and to raise the bar for the next 50 years of river protection, we're aiming to protect 5,000 new miles of Wild and Scenic Rivers nationwide.

Yes, it's a bold goal. And yes, we can do it. It's time to step up and go big. Our rivers deserve no less.

Will you join us?

STRAPS

During the high-water year of 1974, a wave of Idaho rafting accidents gave NRS Founder Bill Parks an idea. Rather than tie equipment down with rope or webbing, which made the gear difficult to detach after a flip, why not adapt cam straps from the freight industry? Bill sourced the best buckle on the flip, along with the strongest, most UV-resistant webbing. When he brought the two together, the NRS strap was born, and the boating world has never looked back. ⚠️ See page 3
